Paragraphs of the report pertaining to the movement finally were deleted and the report was adopted with the understanding that the quastion would be brought before the assembly later for action. Workers in Feeding Service Men.

Monsignor Michael J. Lavelle released a war secret yesterday concerning the Rev. Vincent de Paul McGean, one of his assistants at St. Patrick's Cathedral. and for many years a familiar figure as chaplain of the Fire Department.

The Monsignor told the League o Catholic Women that when Father Mo-Gean returned from the front recently it was minus sixty pounds of the good flesh that he had taken aboard the boat on this side. He pointed to this as proof of the awful conditions over there, saying that Father McGean ascribed his condition largely to the fact that four days of the week were meatless because of Government order, while the other three were meatless berause there wasn't any meat.

The meeting of the League of Catholic Women over which Monsignor Lawelle presided was held in Maxine Elliott's Theatre, and was devoted largely to a discussion of plans for future welfare work.

Elisabeth Marbury, who is first vicepresident of the league, told the women that she hoped their work might con-tinue to grow until it could be carried on as extensively as that of the Y. W. C. A. She paid a tribute to the services of the girl canteen workers of the organization who have been giving up their time, including Sundays and holidays, to carry trays in the restaurants where soldiers, sailors and marines in uniform are served free by the organization. uniform are served free by the organization. In one hut, she said, 1,087 meals were served by these girls in

Monsignor Lavelle said, "the work of the women during the war has been something the like of which was never seen before. They have been as much in it as the men in the trenches. Among all of the organizations engaged in this kind of work, not one has put more heart and soul into it than the New York League of Catholic Women."

James Byrne, who served as a Major in the Red Cross in Italy, told of the extensive work of that organization, but also praised the Italians themselves for great part of the relief work carried

He denounced as a malicious false hood the suggestions made after the first great Austrian successes that members of the priesthood had betrayed the Italisns. "It was Austrian spies in the uni-form of Italias officers," he said, "that contributed to the panic following the great offensive." He declared that the war had greatly increased the efficiency of the Knights of Columbus, and said that he saw for it a future among the Chtholic youth similar to that of the Y. M. C. A. among those of the Protes-

Julia Arthur recited the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and Alma Clay-burgh sang the "Star Spangled Banner." The society plans to continue the work of civic reform and social welfare be-gun by it before the war. Its operations directed from its headquarters at 154 East Thirty-eighth street by Miss Teresa R. O'Donohue, president.

More than a hundred girls, all mem bers of the Young Women's Catholic Patriotic Club, united last night in an entertainment of pageantry at Acollan Hall. There were a number of children, too, most of whom were younger sisters. For three hours a well filled house listened to folklore songs, saw pastoral dances and witnessed the customs of dances and witnessed the customs of A number of detectives were in the Italy, Ireland, Brittany and America in audience, and a representative of the celebrating various religious feasts. Miss District Attorney's office was on hand. Minerva Ferry, France; Miss Josephine Kearney, Ireland, and Miss Mary Doh-erty, America. Each was supported by nembers of the cast.

with fifty members, and now it numbers nearly 800. It has been engaged in war-work principally aside from its social acvities, which consists of a weekly dance to the service men. Members made sur-gical dressings, knitted garments and did other war work.
